DEBUT NOVELS

Never Been Better by Leanne T. Simpson

After a year post-psych ward, Dee struggles with unrequited love for Matt as he and Misa marry in Turks and Caicos. She faces a dilemma: confess her feelings or jeopardize their support system. Love or recovery?

All Our Yesterdays by Joel H. Morris

In 11th-century Scotland, a noble girl, burdened by guilt and prophecy, survives a sadistic marriage. Her cunning leads to freedom, but as Lady Macbeth, she faces power struggles, tragedy, and a haunting curse, risking all for her family and love.

Divorcees by Rowan Beaird

Socially awkward Lois, navigating divorce, spends mandated weeks at a ranch. Her life shifts with Greer's arrival, leading to late nights, excess, and self-discovery. Beaird's debut explores 1950s women's struggles for freedom, revealing complex characters and their desperate quests.

COMING SOON

Murder Road by Simone St. James

In 1995, April and Eddie's honeymoon detours into horror when they pick up a hitchhiker on a haunted road, leading to supernatural events, unexplained murders, and a fight for survival.
